Halliday's Model of Context Halliday's in his "Model of Context" explains that there are following three strands that are crucial to study the register. 1. Field 2. Tenor 3. Mode 1. Field Field is "what is being talked about" or "What the text is about". We can say it is the main theme or topic of the whole discourse.

Field, tenor and mode - a literacy framework for all ...

Field, mode and tenor of discourse describe the context of a situation in which language is used. Register, however, is defined as a functional variety of language according to the use in particular settings. Hence, Halliday connected three distinct functions of language with the three dimensions of a situation mentioned above.

The tenor refers to "the type of role interaction, the set of relevant social relations, permanent and temporary, among the participants involved". These three values - field, mode and tenor - are thus the determining factors for the linguistic features of the text.

The Notion of Register in SFL Theory: FIELD, MODE, and TENOR

Register is a part of sociolinguistics, which is the study of the way in which we use language in a social context. MAK Halliday (whose linguistic theory is discussed in the link below) developed ...

M.A.K. Halliday and the context of situation

Field, tenor and mode are components of linguistics. Every text, regardless of subject, can be viewed from the field-tenor-mode framework. To put it simply, field is the subject matter of the text; tenor is the relationship between the author and the audience; and mode is how the text is constructed, particularly whether it is written-like or spoken-like. I think tenor is something that schools do not do well.

What is register in linguistics? - eNotes.com

Register is defined (e.g., by Michael Halliday) as a semantic configuration that we associate with a particular situation type and characterised on the basis of three variables or components: field, tenor and mode.

Systemic Functional Linguistics as a model for text analysis

3 SFL deals with register in terms of three variables or parameters known as semiotic functions. These are Field, Tenor and Mode 3 (Halliday 1978). Field is the area of external reality with which the text deals. Tenor concerns the relationships between those taking part in the linguistic act.
